That's life! First love

I've fallen head over heels in love!

Anne fürdőköpenyben, hajcsavarókkal a fején kilép a fürdőszobából. Az ajtón kívül várja Edward, aki kamerával felveszi.

Anne (Anne észreveszi Edwardot a kamerával és felkiált): Uh! Edward stop! Put that infernal gadget away! That's enough! There's a limit to everything, you know!

Edward: Great, that's it Anne, go on like that! You're fantastic!

Anne: Oh, fantastic, my eye! I told you to cut it out! Alice? (Hangosabban hívja.) Alice?

Alice (a fürdőszoba ajtajához érkezik): Yes Anne, wha can I do for you? (Meglátja a jelenetet és nevetni kezd.)

Anne: Stop laughing and tell your director friend to give it a rest and put away that damned video camera. I absolutely do not want to be filmed like this. Have I made myself perfectly clear?!

Jack (a nappali ajtaja felől érkezik): Hi Alice, good morning Edward... Can't stop working, eh? What's on the menu for today's shoot? (Meglátja a fürdő küszöbén Anne-t, aki megpróbál elrejtőzni, és nevetni kezd.) Wow Anne, you look beautiful. Excuse me, could I use the bathroom for a moment? Eh? Thanks (Félretolja Anne-t és belép a fürdőbe.)

Alice: Calm down Anne! None of these sessions are going to be shown for air... At least for now.

Anne: What exactly does "for now" mean?

Alice: Well, once all the material's been put in place, cut and edited, Edward's planning on showing it to a producer. If it's accepted, the idea is to go for our own TV programme! Isn't that a great idea?

Anne: What? Producer? Television? Ah! (Megpróbálja kiszedni a hajcsavarókat és bezárkózni a fürdőbe, de Jack eléje áll és nem engedi be.) Let me in Jack! Let me in! Look! Let me in! Uh! Oh! Let me in!

(Később Anne és Alice a konyhában beszélgetnek.)

Alice: So, Anne... What do you think of Edward?

Anne: In what sense? As a man, or as a director?

Alice: Do you really have to ask? As a man, of course!

Anne: Well, I've just met him! So I can't really say. But as a director, my view is that he's a bit too intrusive.

Alice: Come on Anne, get over it! That's his job. In my opinion, I think he's just great!

Anne: Oh! What's this I'm hearing? Our little Alice might be in love?

Alice: Well... Yes! As I see it, Anne, this is the first time in my life I've fallen head over heels in love! So much in love! But he doesn't even notice me! We share so many common interests and we see things in the same way, we can talk for hours on end... But it just ends there! He looks on me as a good friend, nothing more, nothing less. You know, I'm really not used to that role! Usually I'm the one to keep others at bay!

Anne: Yes, I remember! Tom, Frank, David... How many broken hearts have you left behind? So tell me, have you asked Edward how he feels about you?

Alice: No! Of course not! Look, Edward isn't interested in some relationship... He's, he's profound and introspective... Spiritual! He's a person who enjoys observing and analysing others.

Anne: Mmm, yes! If you ask me, too much so! Anyway, I can't agree with you I'm afraid. Even "spiritual" beings have personal longings! I think you should tell him! And who knows, your Edward might be much more "human" than you think!

Alice: Hum, maybe you're right... But I have to think of a special way to show him just how I feel! Maybe I should see what my horoscope has to say... (Elkezd újságot olvasni.) Hum... Hum... Yes! Yes! Yes! I've just had a brilliant idea!

That's life! Love works wonders

It'll go straight to his heart!

Alice éppen főz, a szobában iszonyú nagy rendetlenség van. Belép Anne.

Anne: Alice, are you feeling okay?

Alice: Hi Anne, I'm just preparing a little lunch for Edward.

Anne: Edward? What's for the French accent? I thought you said he was Canadian.

Alice: He is, from the French part. His mother is French, so... He's fully bilingual.

Anne: Well, now that you mentioned it, I had noticed his slight... French accent!

Alice: Oh, yes... Isn't it adorable?

Anne: Well, I must say... Love does work wonders! I'm not at all used to seeing you as a... A housewife!

Alice: Well, to tell you the truth... I haven't got used to it yet.

You know... I just hope I've got the recipe right. You know, I've followed the instructions to the letter, but you know I feel like a fish out of water with these things!

Anne: So, you've decided to go for Edward's jugular!

Alice: Well... Not only that... Here's the crowning touch!

(Felvesz az asztalról egy becsomagolt csokoládét és megmutatja Anne-nek):

Anne: What is it?

Alice: It's a Chinese fortune cookie... With a little note inside.

Anne: What a romantic idea...

Alice: Do you think? I wrote the note myself... I thought I would surprise him by hiding it inside his napkin... Like this. (Alice beteszi a csokoládét az egyik szalvéta alá.) What do you think?

Anne: I think it's just perfect! You'll see, it'll go straight to his heart!

(Megszólal Alice mobilja.)

Alice: Hello? Yes, this is Alice. It's already come in? What? Oh, in half an hour? Yeah, okay, okay, I'll... I'll be there in a few minutes. (Leteszi a telefont.) Anne... Could I borrow your car, please? I have to go and pick up a packet my father sent me but... The post office closes in half an hour and... I won't make it on foot...

Anne: My car? You don't have a licence!

Alice: Oh, don't worry about it... I have it, and, anyway, I always used to drive. You know, my dad's got a car just like yours... Okay... I'm off... Tell Edward I'll be back in a flash... (Kimegy.)

Anne: Alice? Alice? But who's going to clean up this mess? (Magában beszélve.) Get used to it, Anne... It's the same old story! (Megnézi az óráját.) Now I'm late!

(Anne két személyre terít a nappaliban, amikor belép Edward.)

Anne: Oh, I can't believe I always get myself into these situations! I'm late and here I am helping Alice with her grand plan!

Edward: Hi, Anne...

Anne: Huh, hello!

Edward: Hum, that smells great! My compliments to the chef!

Anne: Oh... No, no, no Edward, it's not like you think. I have to go, I've got a meeting with my boss. Alice's just gone out, she told me to let you know that she'll be returning soon. Bye bye! (Anne kimegy.)

Edward: Well, I'm starving! (Mer magának, kinyitja a szalvétát és megtalálja a csokoládét.) Mmm! What's this? A little note? "A little delight for the man who's got my heart racing!" What? What's this all about? There must be some mistake... Oh well, yes, this is my napkin! Who could have written this? Oh my God... Anne?! But, but... But she was just here and she was so shy... This is getting interesting. Anne is very cute... So what am I going to do now? I'm not used to these things.

(Belép Anne zavart arckifejezéssel.)

Anne (magában beszél): Now where has it gone? Well, it's not here, it's not there either. Edward?

Edward: Yes?

Anne: Have you seen my mobile phone? Oh, here it is... Thanks! (Edward folyamatosan nézi.) Pardon me... Why are you eyeing me like that?

Edward: Oh, nothing, nothing!

Anne: Well, alright. I've got to run! Bye bye! (Kimegy.)

Edward: She's acting like nothing is happening at all... This is getting very interesting!

Television Programmes

Let's talk: Change management

Eric: Hello and welcome to this week's edition of "Let's talk", our evening discussion programme with our commentators Tom and Marie.

Marie: Good evening everyone.

Tom: Good evening.

Eric: According to a recent report from the EU on the economies of the Eurozone many companies are going through a difficult period. Senior managers are realising that "business as usual" is no longer possible. Many companies need to embrace radical change in order to survive. What do you think about this situation?

Tom: It's true that today companies must face up to the fact that they may have to change the way they do business. New technology is making this change necessary and new competition can result in a company having to completely re-think its business plan.

Marie: I agree, another example is when a company decides to enter a new market and becomes very successful, this success can require changes to the way the company does things. All these situations result in changes being needed to the way a company operates.

Eric: It's not easy to make changes to the way a company operates and the way people work. How can a company do this successfully?

Tom: There's been a lot of research on this topic, it's called "the change management process".

Eric: I see, so what are the elements of a successful change management process? Where do you start?

Tom: It's important to analyse the situation carefully before embarking on a process of change. A good analyst will identify the key areas of a company's operations that need to be changed. Then an effective change strategy needs to be drawn up, this says exactly what needs to be changed.

Marie: That's right! Input to the strategy can come from the management team or an external consultant. In addition all the company's workers should be asked for ideas.

Eric: Sorry, I don't quite follow that. Do you mean that the workers in a company should be able to decide what changes are made?

Marie: No, that's not what I mean. Everyone in the company should be canvassed for suggestions on changes that could be made to the company. This enables employees to buy into the change process. They feel included and are more likely to implement the changes once they've been decided.

Eric: Ok, I see, it's clear now. So lots of people input into the change strategy. And what happens next?

Tom: Now the strategy has to be implemented, it has to be put into action. This can be the most difficult stage of the change management process. Staff need to be told about the changes and some may need training on new ways of doing things. A member of the management team should be available to answer questions from employees about the changes taking place.

Eric: And once the changes have been implemented, is that it?

Marie: No, it's not! It's very important to consolidate the changes to make sure that employees don't go back to the old way of doing things! A manager should be chosen to act as a "champion" for the changes and should collect feedback from the employees to see what they think about the changes. This champion should praise employees who have implemented the changes.

Tom: Of course! It's very important to raise the morale of staff at this time. Otherwise there's a risk that they'll revert back to the old ways of doing things.

Eric: So it's quite a complex process. Well, companies need to know about change management techniques in order to survive in a today's rapidly changing markets. Thanks to Tom and Marie for their explanation of how to bring about change in a company.

Marie: Goodbye, Eric.

Tom: Goodbye.

Eric: Goodbye everyone and see you again next week for another edition of "Let's Talk".

Cinema: Star Wars

Lucy: Good morning everyone and welcome to another edition of "Talk Cinema". This morning we'll be talking about the most famous of all science fiction sagas Star Wars. As always in the studio with me is Sanjeev Gupta our cinema expert, welcome Sanjeev!

Sanjeev: Hello Lucy, hello everyone.

Lucy: A question to start with Sanjeev: just how many films make up the Star Wars saga?

Sanjeev: Six in all.

Lucy: And how many of these have you seen?

Sanjeev: All six, of course, and you?

Lucy: Four, I think... When was the first film made?

Sanjeev: The first film, "A New Hope" was released in 1977, the last film, "Revenge of the Sith" was released in 2005.

Lucy: And who's the director?

Sanjeev: Well, George Lucas wrote the scripts for all the films and directed four of them.

Lucy: And what about the other two?

Sanjeev: Irvin Kershner is the director of "The Empire Strikes Back" and Richard Marquand directed "The Return of the Jedi".

Lucy: What's so special about the Star Wars films, Sanjeev?

Sanjeev: Lots of things actually, Lucy. You know the first Star Wars film back in 1977 broke new ground with its special effects. New methods were used whereby the action shots were taken against a blue background with real models. It doesn't sound sophisticated compared with today's computer generated effects but 29 years ago it was revolutionary. In fact the amount of time Lucas spent on the special effects almost resulted in the film not being finished.

Lucy: Why do you think the films have been so enormously popular?

Sanjeev: We're dealing with science fiction here but really the storylines in the films draw on themes common not only to science fiction but also to classical mythology.

Lucy: Really? Interesting!

Sanjeev: Yes, then there's the obvious struggle between Good and Bad, there's the famous "force", the energy field that can be used for good but also for bad, love plays a big part in the saga, as does the eternal struggle for power and domination...

Lucy: Love, power and domination, yes... So, have the films made a lot of money?

Sanjeev: It's been estimated that the films, along with the TV series, books and video games that have been made around the Star Wars theme have generated $20 billion over the last 29 years, so $20 billion, yes, that's rather a lot of money.

Lucy: And what about the music in the movies? I really love the music.

Sanjeev: Yes, I think the music has played an important role in helping people to remember the films. John Williams composed the scores for all six films; the style he uses has changed as the years have gone by. In the first films he associated leitmotifs with each character, quite a simple approach. In the later films he changed his mind and took a richer, more sophisticated approach to the music.

Lucy: One last question: is the saga definitely complete now?

Sanjeev: I wouldn't bet on it! There are rumours that George Lucas may be working on a sequel but for television, not for the cinema.

Lucy: So we may be seeing Luke Skywalker again soon; wonderful! Well, thanks Sanjeev and goodbye.

Sanjeev: Goodbye.

Lucy: To all of you and Sanjeev, "may the force be with you"! Goodbye.
